

MARINES BATTERED

...Two Companies Hit By Intense Communist Fire

Salon (U) — North Vietnamese army regulars continued harassing tactics overnight on embattled U.S. Marines near the demilitarized zone separating the two Viet Nams, the U.S. command reported Monday. Two Leatherneck companies were reported hit hard by the enemy in the area Sunday and were under intense fire at nightfall.

The command said the Hanoi regulars broke off direct contact at nightfall and only light contact and red sniper fire was reported by units of the U.S. 5th Marines overnight.

The status of the two embattled Marine companies was not immediately clear.

But before dark, the Hanoi regulars pounded the two units with intense fire from the thick jungles three miles south of the buffer zone. The enemy fire drove off Leatherneck helicopters trying to reach the wounded and blocked a reinforcement attempt. One of the companies was reported to have suffered heavy casualties.

"I've got a lot of dead Marines up here and a lot of wounded," a Marine company commander radioed to his battalion headquarters.

As the Marines battled near the 17th Parallel, the U.S. command reported the loss of a Navy Skyhawk to ground fire Sunday over North Viet Nam about 80 miles northwest of Dong Hoi. The pilot bailed out and was rescued from the Gulf of Tonkin, the command said.

The U.S. plane was the 12th reported shot down in the past eight days and the 308th officially listed as lost over the communist north.

Elsewhere, Vietnamese forces claimed 47 Viet Cong killed in two operations in South Viet Nam, one in Kien Giang Province 120 miles southwest of Saigon and the other in Tay Ninh Province near the Cambodian border.

In Saigon, the venerable Thien Hoa became temporary rector of the Buddhist Lay Institute. He replaced moderate leader the venerable Tam Chau, who resigned for health reasons after playing a key role in solving differences between Buddhists and the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

The U.S. command, describing over-all Marine losses near the 6-mile-wide buffer zone as light, said the official count of enemy dead had reached 646.

The Marines have been trying to flush out and destroy a North Vietnamese division of between 8,000 and 10,000 men believed to have slipped across the demilitarized zone from the north. About 5,000 U.S. Marines are participating in the operation which began 10 days ago.

With one company of Marines under heavy fire, a second Marine company was sent to reinforce, but a communist ambush pinned it down about 1,000 yards from the scene of the initial attack.

Involved were India and Kilo Companies of the 5th Marines' 3rd Battalion taking part in Operation Hastings, which is designed to flush out and destroy a North Vietnamese division of between 8,000 and 10,000 men believed to have slipped across the demilitarized zone from the north.

Associated Press correspondent George Esper reported from near the fighting zone south of the demilitarized zone that the Marines' India Company came under mortar and machine gun attacks around noon. He said the fighting continued into the night with Kilo Company still pinned down almost within shouting distance of India Company.

A radio report received at headquarters of the 3rd battalion said one platoon of India Company had suffered more than 50% casualties. Over-all Marine casualties were reported light.

Even after nightfall, Marine helicopters were unable to reach the embattled Marine outfit because of the intense enemy fire.

Cleveland Riot Woes Dwindle

Cleveland, Ohio (U) — With heavy rains helping, Negro ministers sought Sunday night to stabilize a shaky racial peace by meeting with slum residents in the riot-struck East Side — patrolled by National Guardsmen and police.

"We are hopeful — very hopeful," said the Rev. James Redding, a social worker in the East Side where violence erupted seven days ago, leaving four dead, more than 50 injured and heavy property damage.

"We are trying to get to the persons who can stop this," said the Rev. Mr. Redding, who was at a meeting in the riot area. "We have been fortunate enough to make contact."

Blame City

At another meeting, the blame for the violent outbreaks was laid in the city administration. One speaker, Mrs. Daisy Craggett, who heads a community council group in the area, said various governmental programs had poured millions into the slums but the money had not "filtered down to the people who need it most."

Rain poured during the afternoon and night, keeping the streets virtually deserted under the tight patrols.

"This is one beautiful rain," said Deputy Police Inspector Lewis G. Coffey. "It looks as if our Sunday prayers have been answered."

"We feel the situation has improved tremendously," Col. Dana Stewart of the 2,000-man guard force had said earlier.

Mayor Ralph S. Locher said he hoped conditions would continue to improve. But after meeting with Guard officers, Locher ruled out early withdrawal of the troops.

It seemed a normal Sunday in Hough, center of the rioting last week. Worshipers walked to store-front churches. A group of children clustered around a soldier to look at his bayonet.

One youngster, wearing his Sunday finery, kept offering a Guardsman a piece of chocolate cake.

Minor incidents marred Saturday night's relative calm.

A Negro woman was grazed by a bullet when a Guardsman fired on a truck bearing down on another soldier. One shot was fired when the driver refused to halt at a blockade.

Jeep Mirror Hit

A sniper shot shattered a sideview mirror on a jeep in the early morning hours. Policemen chased a man with a gun.

Guardsmen returned fire from a wooded area but the sniper was not found.

"We only fired eight rounds all night," Stewart said.

Three men were arrested when caught making firebombs under the porch of an abandoned house. Police said the men had the usual material—bottles for the gasoline and rags for the wicks.

Market Nations OK Single Farm Policy

Brussels, Belgium (U)—Prospects for the Kennedy round of world trade talks brightened Sunday as ministers of the six European Common Market nations hammered out agreement on completing a single farm policy.

After haggling for 13 hours, the ministers signed an accord as dawn broke over Brussels. The package deal, which has been a point of dispute for months, will pool the farm interests of the six partners—France, West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg.

In completing their single farm policy, the six finally agreed on market organizations for their most controversial commodities: fruits and vegetables, and dairy products and sugar.

Satisfied the ministers expressed satisfaction with the results. But there was little jubilation about what they viewed more as a compromise than an accord.

"It is not ideal," French agriculture minister Edgar Faure told newsmen. "But it was better to accept the deal than to continue negotiations for many more months."

West Germany's minister of agriculture Rudolf Hoecherl called the agreement "bearable."

Final agreement was delayed by a dispute between Italy and Holland over fruit and vegetables.

Italy, the Common Market's biggest producer of fruit and vegetables, wanted heavy protection. It demanded automatic rebates paid out of the common fund to compete with exports of fresh and canned fruits and juices from the United States and other countries. Holland claimed such a move would result in a price war in fruits and vegetables.

Rebates Allowed

The ministers finally agreed that national governments would be allowed to pay export rebates for fruit and vegetables. These rebates could be increased if import taxes were charged on foreign markets. This ruling will last only until July 1, 1969, after which the system of export rebates must be reviewed.

Under the agreed market organization for fruit and vegetables, governments would be allowed to pay fruit growers indemnities of up to 90% in case of surpluses. The six could submit the bill for these losses to the common farm fund that would refund for a total of $60 million a year.

For sugar, the six agreed on production quotas for each country and a guaranteed price of $17 per 100 kilos (220 pounds) for sugar beet. If production exceeds the percentage quotas by a certain amount, producers would be paid only $10 per 100 kilos.

The six agreed on setting the milk price in the community at $9.75 per 100 kilos milk with a 3.7% fat content.

Last January the six agreed on a "balanced package deal" that included agreement on a single farm policy, its joint financing and a customs union to be simultaneously introduced with the single farm policy July 1, 1968. But West Germany and Holland insisted that this package deal hinge on agreed bids on industrial and farm products in the world trade talks.

Talks Limited

So far the Common Market negotiating team at the Kennedy round talks in Geneva has had incomplete directives, mainly covering industrial products. The Kennedy round was made possible by the U.S. Congress passing the Trade Expansion Act which expires in the world trade talks.

The Trade Expansion Act called for parallel negotiations on industrial and agricultural products. U.S. sales of farm products to the community now run at some $1.6 billion dollars a year.

As a trade group, the Common Market has become an increasingly important customer for U.S. agricultural products and received 21% of total U.S. farm exports in 1965.

Total costs of the Common Market's farm policy will run into billions of dollars.

YOUNGSTERS...working on papier-mache rattles.

Playground Program Lures 17,500 Children Each Week

Lined up single file, the number of children who participate in the city's nine-week playground recreation program would stretch some 30 miles.

And that's figuring one foot of ground per child.

During an average week some 72 supervisors who staff Lincoln's 27 playgrounds see, talk to, and guide an estimated 17,500 youngsters, according to Bill Heggen, director of playgrounds.

Under the supervision of adult attendants, the children learn craft activities such as making papier-mache rattles by wrapping a light bulb in old newspaper. Once the paper is dried, the bulb is broken and the paper painted.

Older youths practice skills at box hockey, clock golf, table tennis, baseball, horseshoes, and a variation called washer horseshoes.

Playoffs Every Week

The summer program is designed so that almost each week the youngsters hold a championship playoff in each activity.

"That gives almost everyone a chance to compete in something," Heggen said. Champions in different activities get to compete in weekly championships held in Omaha on Wednesday. The championships are televised for release Saturday afternoon on KMTV, Heggen said.

Televised competitions include an obstacle race, the playground twist, a potato race, a rope-jumping contest, a high jump and a game called broom stick-a-go-go.

In addition, the youngsters participate in special night activities, the most recent of which was carnival night. Coming up soon are Joseph Lee Night in honor of the man who was responsible for initiating public playgrounds in America, "the battle of the sexes," and "round up time."

Interspersed with these activities, Heggen said, is the job of keeping track of standings for 55 baseball teams in the Playground League. The league is made up of groups of boys 12 and under, boys 13 to 15 and girls to 15 years old.

Big Hit

Another big hit with the kids is the Play Mobile and the Show Wagon, he said.

The Play Mobile is a truck that carries playground and craft equipment to school grounds being used during the summer and is such a hit that Heggen said the recreation department "could use another one."

The Show Wagon is a truck which, when set up, becomes a portable stage. Local talent, recruited by Mrs. Dean Frost of the City Recreation Department, give performances to youngsters and their parents.

Attendance at the performances seems to be going up all the time, Heggen said.

At the Show Wagon's last performance, 400 persons, including children and adults, attended he said.

Looking Good

In terms of the number of youngsters who take advantage of the program, Heggen said things look good, both now and for the future.

And, things will get better, he said, as soon new concrete slabs, recently given tentative approval, are installed on playgrounds, he said.

Educators Security, Texas Firm Merge

A sizeable merger bringing a Texas company into Educators Security Insurance Company of Lincoln has been completed, according to G.J. Roberts Jr., president of Educators Security.

"We have just culminated the merging of International Fidelity Insurance Company of Dallas into Educators Security, bringing our company's life insurance in force to more than $95 million and increasing our assets to over $8.5 million," Roberts said.

The merger has been approved by the insurance departments of Texas and Nebraska following stockholder approval of each company earlier this year.

Educators Security, 300 So 17th, came into being in February 1964. It has some 1,500 teachers in 13 states.

Roberts said Educators Security plans to develop an agency force in each of the states west of the Mississippi River, with its first develop-

Top Hams Given Centennial Awards

BY VIRGIL FALLOON

Star Staff Writer

Anselmo—Gov. Frank Morrison presented Centennial QSL awards to 20 Nebraska amateur radio operators Sunday during a "hamfest" and steak-fry at Victoria Springs State Park near here.

The governor praised the state's ham operators for their public service in times of disaster and emergencies and as "good-will ambassadors" for the state's coming 1967 Centennial Year celebration.

"It's a wonderful hobby you have," he told some 150 amateurs and their families. "You're doing a wonderful job in helping the Nebraska Centennial efforts."

The Centennial QSL award signifies a specified number of radio contacts by a Nebraska ham with those in other states or foreign countries.

First 20

The first 20 amateurs qualifying for the award were: Mike Nickolaus, Dave Heumann, Ray Gebhard, Bernie Sasek, Nate Keedy, all of Lincoln; Virginia Johnson, Royce E. Johnson, Louisiana R. Pickert, all of Omaha; Vic Clarence, Bellevue; Frank J. Miller, Clarkson; Wm. E. Ewing, Lyman; Ed G. Haley, Valley; Corwin Arndt, Pleasanton; Butch Wlaschin, Scottsbluff; Dean Cox, Wymore; Ernie Abbott, Almeria; Chuck Hinz and Don J. Launer, Fremont; Melville Crandall, Unadilla; and Burl Dammkruger, DeWitt.

Ed Sykes, Nebraska Centennial Commission deputy director, said Nebraska hams contacted every state, every Canadian province and 51 foreign countries during the first six weeks of the QSL program.

"You Nebraska amateurs have accomplished in six weeks what other states took a year to do in their centennial events," he said. "More than 50,000 QSL cards have gone out from the state since March 1."

700 Participating
Don Short of Lincoln, Centennial QSL committee member, said some 700 Nebraska radio amateurs are participating.

The fourth annual hamfest, sponsored by the Central Nebraska Amateur Radio Club of Broken Bow, attracted some 450 persons, including a number of ham families from other states.

Ed Loeffler of Burwell, club president, said the event started as a local picnic in 1940s but became a state-wide event about four years ago.

"You hams are also good cooks," Morrison commented to Loeffler on the Nebraska beef steak fry.

Loeffler estimated some 100 persons on hand for the Saturday night wiener roast preceding Sunday's event.

For some radio amateurs, it was their first face-to-face meeting after being "friends on the air" for months or years.

For others it was a chance to swap talk over equipment and experiences and to discuss activities of the radio amateur networks and clubs.

All Counties Active In Brucellosis Plan

... PROGRAM TESTS CATTLE

All Nebraska counties are now signed up to participate in the state-federal brucellosis program, according to Crosby Howe, University of Nebraska extension animal hygienist.

The Market Cattle Testing Program is the direct result of cooperation between the Nebraska Stock Growers Association, individual ranchers, state and county extension personnel, auction market operators, practicing and state and federal veterinarians, he said.

This Market Cattle Testing Program provides the most inexpensive method yet devised enabling counties to become modified certified areas, he added.

Tagged At Market

The market cattle program provides that all cows three years of age or older from each herd must be back tagged at the market. Blood samples are taken from slaughter cows at the packing house, whereas the cows returning to the country for feeding or breeding purposes are tested at the market.

Modified certified means that when at least 15% of the cows three years-of-age or older from each herd have been tested during a three year period under the Market Cattle Testing Program, the infection rate has been found to be 1% or less in 5% or fewer of the herds.

State and federal authorities report that 26,520 cows from 14 western counties were back tagged with test results reported on 62.6%, Howe said.

Twenty cows with a significant reaction were found. The infection located by this test amounted to less than 0.1% which supports the contention by many ranchers that most cattle herds harbor little or no brucellosis infection, he said.

There is still a lot of work to be done before Nebraska can reach the modified certified stage in the nationwide program to eradicate this disease that attacks cattle and people, he pointed out. The disease in people is called undulant fever.

One thing that each individual stockman can do is to insist that all of his cull cows be back tagged and tested, Howe added. Producers are the people who should direct their market to apply tags to all cows sold that are three or more years of age. It is then up to all segments of the industry to see that all tagged cows are bled so that the tests can be credited to each rancher and his county of origin, he said.

As the end of the three-year period approaches, state law provides that those herds that have been unable to meet the 15% requirement will be blood tested on the ranch. A complete herd, or a graph number of cattle will be tested.

The Market Cattle Testing Program is a method that will allow each ranch herd to meet modified certified brucellosis status over a three-year period with little extra time, effort, or expense to the rancher, Howe said. In conjunction with this program, official calfhood vaccination of all heifers will be paid for by the state and federal agencies. The vaccination will be done by the veterinarian of the rancher's choice.

Validation
The validation program for the elimination of brucellosis in swine continues to lag, Howe said. The only herds in Nebraska with validated status are in the Specific Pathogen Free swine program.

"Buyers of purebred breeding stock should insist that the breeding animals they buy come from herds that are free of diseases such as brucellosis, leptospirosis, atrophic rhinitis and virus pig pneumonia on a herd basis," he said.

"Here again, swine brucellosis and leptospirosis are diseases of animals that are transmissible to man. By eliminating disease from our animals, we safeguard human health."

"Consult your local veterinarian, concerning the swine Brucellosis Validation program that is available under the State-Federal program."

McNamara Defends Decision Not To Close Haiphong Port

Washington (AP) — Some of the reasons why the United States has not closed the port of Haiphong were disclosed Sunday night.

In congressional testimony, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said the military rewards would not be impressive if the principal North Vietnamese port were mined or otherwise closed—though he conceded this thinking could change.

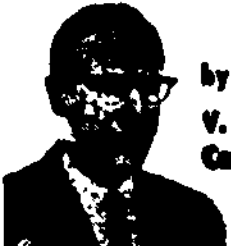

But the defense chief's estimate on the risks of a greater war arising from such an operation was deleted from the testimony released Sunday night by a House appropriations subcommittee.

McNamara said it is heavy battle casualties, regardless of the "relatively small" infiltration of supplies into the South, which will have a lot to do with the will of the Communists to fight on.

The Reds could put in material "over the beaches or they could move it along the roads from South China into North Viet Nam," he said. "So there's no assurance that mining the harbor would stop the flow, or even significantly reduce the flow, of supplies from North Viet Nam into South Viet Nam."

McNamara testified March 30 when the subcommittee was considering the administration's $917-million foreign military aid request. This was three months before U.S. planes first struck at Hanoi.

Funds Available For Agents

Imperial — Southwestern Nebraska counties have been advised that funds can be made available for filling vacancies in counties where there are now no county agents — provided qualified personnel can be found.

Dr. John Adams, director of the Agricultural Extension Service at the University of Nebraska, met here with representatives of extension organizations from Chase, Perkins and Dundy Counties.

Vacancies now are in Perkins, Dundy, Frontier, Phelps-

Gosper and Thurston Counties and for area home agents located at Hastings and Alliance.

Adams told the group that people with masters degrees and well qualified will be acceptable to the University or those with bachelors degrees capable of doing graduate work later on.

Adams said efforts will continue to see if it is possible to combine counties to make the maximum use of available county, state and federal funds. Several such arrangements are now in operation in Banner and Kimball Counties, in Keith and Arthur Counties and in Brown, Rock and Keya Paha Counties.

Adams told the southwestern group that qualified personnel is most difficult to find at present because of the heavy demand for agriculturally trained people.

By Glenn Kreuscher, Farm Editor

There is hardly a better welcome on return from a 3,700 mile vacation than to enter Nebraska at Haigler and have it rain the entire way home.

After looking at thousands of acres of wasteland and sparse pasture from Colorado west to California, it is another treat to see the spacious fields of Nebraska grain, forage and pasture.

I noticed more cattle in Nebraska pastures than I saw in Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona, part of New Mexico, Utah, and southern California.

In fact I wondered where the livestock was being maintained in some of our western states.

For the tourist that doesn't pay much attention to livestock the open range country can pose some real dangers for highway travel.

Here, Car Collide
Driving late one evening in Wyoming we came upon a long line of traffic tied up with the collision between a new automobile and a horse.

It was necessary for authorities to destroy the horse and the new automobile was almost a total wreck.

I always appreciate the good service given by our service stations throughout the country, but this time I hit some new experiences.

A tire with a slight puncture was termed beyond repair at an Arizona station, until I showed the man how I would fix it. At another stop I was informed that one rear tire was about to blow out.

Since the pocket book was already squeezed, we decided to use our best judgment and we were still going strong when we returned home.

Sweet Clover
The forage product with the widest range of growth would have to go to sweet clover. We saw sweet clover growing in campsites, along highways and in locations way beyond that noticed on any former trip through the west.

We always try to take advantage of travel to promote Nebraska, and one of the family's best salesmen is 14-year-old Jim.

This trip Jim attempted to sell a group of eastern women that go to some spot for a three week vacation each year on coming to Nebraska next year.

One experience Jim will never forget came in Rocky Mountain National Park when he was attempting to sell the qualities of Nebraska.

He encountered a tourist who had come through Nebraska during the recent heat wave; and then to clinch the argument on how good Nebraska really was, Jim reminded his acquaintance that the Cornhuskers really walloped a certain Big Ten school last fall.

Cool Off
About that time we noticed a fellow ready to take after Jim, and Mother thought maybe it was better if Dad didn't enter the discussion but just wait until the tourist had a chance to go through Nebraska in cooler weather.

This provided quite a bit of discussion for the family on our return home, but about the time we hit Highway 14 east of Sutton we couldn't think of many things to say in defense of what the fellow had to say about Nebraska roads.

When we stopped for the night at Wray, Colo., a local businessman provided some information regarding our inquiry on "how's business."

"We are missing a lot of traffic through here. Some people thought people leaving the farm would hurt the communities, but the re-routing of traffic over the interstate highways is causing some real concern for many communities," said the Wray businessman.

We do have some assurance that it helps to talk up Nebraska on trips. One of the families we visited with in Estes Park stopped overnight in Lincoln on their way home. "The swimming pool, zoo and Capitol building at Lincoln, and our stop at Pioneer Village added something special to our trip, and we are glad you suggested the stop," said the family from Michigan that took the invitation to go home through Nebraska.

Nebraska Legion Votes Sikyta New Commander

... URGES VETERANS' CABINET RANK

Grand Island (AP) — Jim Sikyta, a 45-year old Ashland contractor, was named commander of the Nebraska department of the American Legion Sunday as the group wound up its annual convention.

A World War II veteran, Sikyta served nearly five years, entering the war as a member of the 134th Infantry Regiment. He is married and the father of four children.

Sikyta won over Robert Corn of Papillion.

The Rev. George Stevenson of Omaha was elected department chaplain.

The legion did not name a site for the 1967 convention, leaving it to the executive committee which meets this fall.

Orville Dudden of Venango was elected senior vice commander.

Chosen as area commanders were Rich Paul of Millard, Al Tuck of Columbus, Myron Schroeder of Palmyra and Harold Baker of Trenton.

Jerome Henn of Petersburg was elected national executive committee man and Bob Lowery of Cairo was named his alternate.

The legion auxiliary picked Mrs. John Kerlakes of Omaha as state president, succeeding Mrs. Lester Hensens of Chadron, who was named national executive committee woman.

The auxiliary named Mrs. Allen Becker of Plymouth as historian and Mrs. Peter Marchetti of Omaha as delegate-at-large.

The legion elected George Coupe of Nebraska City for meritorious service and Bob Samardick of Omaha, who operates an armored truck service, for employing older persons.

The auxiliary presented awards to nine posts for excellence in legion activities.

Receiving top awards for child welfare activities were the Atkinson and Hemingford posts, Osceola, St. Edward and North Platte were recognized for having the best April child welfare meetings.

Hampton, Osceola, Lincoln and St. Edward received awards for year-round welfare programs.

Six districts—South Omaha, East Omaha, Benson, Belvidere, Juniata and Butte—received coffee urns for accumulating more than one million points in collecting coffee strips for toys for crippled children.

New auxiliary officers were installed by Mrs. Walter Glynn, national auxiliary president.

The Legion adopted a number of resolutions, including: —Advocated that the U.S.

Department of Veterans Affairs be elevated to cabinet rank.

—Voted full support to federal and state agencies in charge of veterans employment.

—Voted support and work for new state legislation for education of mentally retarded.

—Endorsed extension of the universal military training act to June 30, 1971.

—Voted the belief the Legion should try to discourage the burning of draft cards and other demonstrations, and advocated prosecution of leaders of these demonstrations.

—Asked installation of air conditioning in veterans hospitals in Nebraska and Grand Island, Lincoln and Omaha.

—Proposed amendment of state law to extend veterans benefits to veterans of Viet Nam.

The Nebraska department presented the Clarence Cody Memorial Award to Ernie Borchart of Holdrege.

STAUFFER . . . sports canes from 19 ports.

Deshler Publisher Spans World On Dutch Freighter

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Deshler — If he's never been called the "gallivantin' grandpa" before, he has now. Amos Stauffer certainly deserves the title.

Two summers ago his two teenage granddaughters were his traveling companions, but only to Alaska and back. Now he's nifty enough to go around the world—at age 69, on a Dutch freighter and with three fellow passengers who were complete strangers.

"Some people wouldn't give a nickel for that kind of travel," he grinned, "I thought it was the greatest."

Since making it to the Mardi Gras in 1945, the retired Deshler Rustler publisher has sailed on six ocean voyages and visited every state but one. The sightseeing was always with his wife until her death four years ago—shortly after their cruise to Honduras by banana boat.

"We'd planned the Alaska trip together, and I knew Clara would have wanted me to go and to take the girls along," reflects the amiable Thayer County man. As adventuresome as grandpa were Sally Stauffer of Grand Island and Mary Jo McLaughlin of Deshler, both then 15.

The global voyage this spring? It ended in June after four months, 19 ports and "a little of everything from camel auctions to cathedrals." By chumming with the Dutch sailors, the Nebraskan had a vantage point different from that of most travel tours. The passage, complete, was $1,256.

"Fortunately for me, practically the whole 'Banda' crew spoke some English," Stauffer recalled. "They were especially helpful in guiding to the best souvenirs at the best prices."

Many of the gifts were native dolls for the collection of daughter Pat. She and husband Dave McLaughlin now publish The Rustler, taking it over after Stauffer suffered a heart attack in 1958.

The traveler also added 19 canes—one for each port—to his colorful and meaningful collection. There's a personal story that goes with each of the 50 or so pieces.

There should be a few more canes this fall, when that last state becomes a port of call. Aloha, Deshler and hello, Hawaii!

Omaha Man Found Dead

Omaha (AP) — A 56-year-old Omaha man, dead of a stab wound, was found in his apartment Saturday and acting Coroner George Sullivan ordered an autopsy.

Police identified the victim as Jesse James. They said there were indications he had been dead for a day when found.

Police arrested a woman they identified as 37-year-old Ginger G. Hazley and quoted her as saying she had been in a fight with the victim three or four days before.

She was taken to a hospital for treatment of cuts, bruises and cracked ribs, she said were administered with fists and bricks.

Henderson Man Is IVS Worker

Saigon (UPI)—The U. S. Aid Mission reported that Ronald Mieram of Henderson, Neb., is one of 22 new International Voluntary Services (IVS) workers to arrive in Viet Nam to assist in farm and community development programs.

The volunteers are undergoing six weeks of Vietnamese language training in My Tho and Nha Trang prior to assignments in the Vietnamese provinces.

Their arrival brings to 76 the number of IVS workers in Vietnam. The young volunteers receive $80 a month salary.

IVS is a private non-sectarian organization which emphasizes the person-to-person approach. In Viet Nam IVS works under contract with the U.S. government.

Ex-Lincoln Man Being Held In Denver Attracts Attention

Denver (AP) — An ex-Lincoln man being held in Denver City Jail has attracted a considerable amount of attention. Officers in Lakewood, Colo., arrested Robert Morse Stroth of Commerce City, Colo., Friday after a long search.

At one point police had concluded that Stroth had drowned in Granby Reservoir. While skin divers searched the water, Stroth turned up in Lakewood.

Denver police said Stroth will be questioned by a detective from Cheyenne, Wyo., who will bring with him a woman who said she recognizes Stroth as the man who attacked her.

Stroth was picked out in an Also en route to Denver are a Fort Collins, Colo., woman and a member of the Fort Collins police department. They want to question Stroth about an assault case in Fort Collins.

Two Denver women and a Boulder woman were unable pick Stroth out of a lineup as the man who attacked them, however.

Stroth was picked out in an earlier lineup Friday by a 27-year-old Denver school teacher who said he was the man who had entered her apartment and pistol whipped and assaulted her. Two youths who saw the assailant leave the teacher's apartment also picked Stroth out of a lineup, police said.

Campus Slaying
Two Boulder detectives arrived in Denver Saturday to question Stroth about the fatal beating of 20-year-old University of Colorado coed Elaura Jaquette.

The Jaquette girl was slain July 9 in a music room on the Boulder campus. Stroth has denied any connection with the murder or with the rape cases.

Stroth is married and the father of a five-year-old son who has recently undergone a series of operations to correct a heart murmur.

Three Die On Nebraska Highways

By Associated Press

A Sutherland couple and a rural Columbus woman died in separate two-car accidents in Nebraska Sunday. Four others were injured in the two mishaps and another Nebraska man was seriously hurt in a Texas mishap.

The State Safety Patrol said Gladys Mayhew and her husband Arthur, both 46, were killed in a two-car collision just east of Superior on State Highway 8. Mrs. Mayhew was driving their vehicle.

The Mayhews' daughter Debora, 12, and the driver of the other car, Dennis Martens of Hardy were also injured. Martens was treated and released, but the girl was held and listed in satisfactory condition at a hospital.

In the second state accident later Sunday, Mrs. Arlyne Mohrman, 45, of Route 3 Columbus died, according to patrol trooper Cecil Hoeman of Columbus.

The two drivers, Mrs. Mohr-

NEWS

of suburban areas

Suburban news this week sounds like the train boarding in a railroad depot, with all of the departures and arrivals we note. Some are residents, saying goodbye to a home of several years, or families new to Lincoln. Others are out-of-town guests enjoying their own private reunions, or young people departing for new adventures. No matter which category, or which area, suburban residents are on the move.

COUNTRY CLUB TERRACE

Pace Boulevard residents have said goodbye to Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wolf, who will be making their new home in Prairie Village, Kan.

WEDGEWOOD MANOR

Lincoln's loss will be Omaha's gain—Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rowe are moving to that city from Cottonwood Drive.

And another loss in Wedgewood Manor and on Cottonwood Dr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Hill are moving to a new home in Superior.

Driftwood Lane, however, has gained a new family. From Papillion have come three new faces; those of Mr. and Mrs. Larry D. Bonner, and their son, Kurt, who is 20 months old.

Recent and current guests are keeping Mr. and Mrs. Dale Shoemaker busy. After a week of visiting, two Walnut Creek, Calif., residents are heading home—Mrs. Shoemaker's sister, Miss Marjorie Dewey; and Miss Kay Telly.

Mr. and Mrs. Shoemaker's daughter and grandchildren, Mrs. Harold Williams, Molly and Craig, arrived last Wednesday for a three week visit. After her mother and her brother return to their Portland, Ore., home, Molly will stay for an additional two-week visit with her grandparents. Mrs. Shoemaker will then accompany her home.

CLIFFORD PLACE

After six years, Mrs. Louis Nielson, the former Marlene Fitzwater, finally made it back to Lincoln for a visit.

Sunday Wedding

The wedding of Miss Carol Ann Gould, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay W. Gould of Brule, and Milton Lewis Talcott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight M. Talcott of Lincoln, took place on Sunday afternoon, July 24, at St. John's Lutheran Church in Brule. The 2 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. E. L. Feyerherm before an arrangement of apricot-toned gladioli and white chrysanthemums, and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Avon Larson. Dean Schow was the vocal soloist.

The attendants, Mrs. Wilfred Eastwood of Ogallala, who was her sister's matron of honor, and bridesmaid Miss Diana Meyer, wore daytime-length frocks of crepe in the apricot shade. Their costumes were completed with frock-toned hats with brief, circular veils. Their bouquets were fashioned of mint green carnations and stephanotis.

Louis Gould served as best man, and seating the guests were Kerry Shatell of Yakima, Wash., and Wilfred Eastwood.

Chantilly lace over satin created the gown worn by the bride. The long-sleeved bodice designed with a rounded neckline, was smoothly fitted above a bouffant skirt fashioned of tiers of Chantilly lace and given back interest with a large organdy bow from which wide panels extended into a train. A crown of pearl-encrusted lace held in place her veil of silk illusion and she carried a bouquet of roses and stephanotis.

Upon their return from a honeymoon trip Mr. Talcott and his bride will reside on RR8, Lincoln.

The bride is a former student at the University, and Mr. Talcott was graduated from the Columbus Basin Junior College at Vasca, Wash.

Twenty-five guests were invited to the brunch after which Miss Owens was presented with a miscellaneous shower.

TALK

Flashback to last mid-week and a surprise party. It seems that William C. Beachly had a birthday anniversary last Wednesday—July 20, and a group of his friends thought it should be celebrated. Mr. Beachly wasn't in on the secret until the group arrived at his home where Mrs. Beachly had everything ready for the beginning of the party. Then it was to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bookstrom for a patio supper.

And speaking of parties—There is a luncheon tomorrow at the Inter Com club and the affair is a pre-nuptial courtesy to Miss Camille DeVriendt who has an August date for her marriage to Joseph Hrabka. The hostesses will be Mrs. Roger Sack, the former Diane DeVriendt, sister of the bride and Kappa Alpha Theta at Nebraska—Pi Beta Phi at Nebraska. Mrs. Sack and Mrs. Bell had planned to have the party at the University Club but the club has closed its doors until early August.

The Lincoln Symphony Guild, so it would seem has no thoughts of summer vacationing. The Guild has a benefit bridge scheduled for next Wednesday—at Gold's auditorium. The bridge session begins at 1:30 o'clock and we suggest that all interested contact Mrs. Don Weller or Mrs. J. H. Voesper.

BRIDE at afternoon service

At a 4 o'clock ceremony on Sunday afternoon, July 24, the wedding of Miss Linda King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James O. King, and Stanley Ochsner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Ochsner of Saronville, took place at the First Methodist Church. The Rev. C. Elb Munden solemnized the service, and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Marjorie Matson-Smith who also accompanied the vocal soloist, Miss Nancy Rogers.

Miss Peggy King was her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Carol King, Miss Lois King and Miss Janice Parrott. The attendants appeared in long-skirted frocks of silk organza over taffeta, in the turquoise shade, and each carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations tinged with blue.

Ronald Ochsner of Sutton served his brother as best man, and seating the guests were James Ochsner of Saronville, also a brother of the bridegroom; Leon Wallway of Midland, Mich.; Dale Mirr of Moline, Ill.; Ronald Benson of Scottsbluff, and Max Cruikshank.

A gown of organza over taffeta was chosen by the bride for her wedding. The sculptured Empire bodice was designed with an oval neckline contoured with scallops of re-embroidered lace, and the lace motif was repeated to band the bell sleeves. The slender sheath skirt was given back interest with a detachable train which extended into cathedral length. A star-shaped calot of lace, dotted with pearls, held to the head her bouffant elbow-length veil, and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Mr. Ochsner and his bride, following a honeymoon trip to Colorado, will reside at 4916 Cleveland St., in Lincoln.

FORMER coed a morning bride

Arrangements of white Majestic daisies and gladioli appointed the chancel of St. Patrick's Church for the marriage of Miss Nancy Ann White, daughter of Mrs. Ralph E. White, and the late Mr. White, to Stephen M. Nielsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vance A. Nielsen of Kearney, which took place on Saturday morning, July 23. The Rev. Kenneth Schlessor solemnized the 10:30 o'clock service.

Floor length frocks of mint green linen, designed in the Empire mode, were chosen for the costumes of attendants Miss Betsy White, who was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids Miss Nancy Alden of Kimball, and Miss Charlene Hametz. Each wore a head-circlet of daisies and each carried a nosegay of Esther Reed daisies.

Jerry Kenton served as best man, and seating the guests were Tom Chandler of Northfield, Minn., and Ed Tippetts of Portland, Ore.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of silk organza and peau d'ange lace. The lace accented the Empire line of the bodice, fashioned with a portrait neckline, and ornamented the elbow-length sleeves, the lace was repeated in circlet patterns on the bell-shaped skirt which was given back interest with a train that extended into cathedral length. A crown of lace flowers, encrusted with pearls held in place her bouffant, shoulder-length veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses.

Mr. Nielsen and his bride will reside in Omaha.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority, and recently completed her training in medical technology at the University Hospital. Mr. Nielsen also was graduated from the University of Nebraska where he is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity, and now is a sophomore at the University of Nebraska College of Medicine in Omaha, and is a member of Phi Rho Sigma, medical fraternity.

ABBY

one man's racket—etc.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We recently purchased a very nice home in what we thought was a quiet, refined neighborhood. Shortly after moving in, we discovered that our next door neighbor had decorated the trees in her yard, as well as her porch, with "wind chimes."

They are little brass bells, ceramic discs, wooden clankers and glass-do-dads—supposedly "musical" noise makers.

The slightest little breeze sets these things knocking against each other and creating the damndest clanging, ringing, tingling racket you have ever heard. Now we don't want to make enemies of our neighbors right off the bat, but we would like them to know that we do not care for this kind of racket. Or is that music?

ANTI-CHIMES
DEAR ANTI: One man's racket is another man's Rachmaninoff. Invite her over for coffee and ask her if she read DEAR ABBY today.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old divorcee with a 7-year-old child. For the last two years I have been keeping house for a divorced man who has four children. I live in and can keep my child with me. I fell in love with this man and things went farther than they should. Sometimes he acts like he loves me, but other times he slaps me around.

He also brings other women to the house and asks me to wait on them. This just about kills me. I can't leave because I have nowhere to go. The pay is good here and no one else would hire a woman with a child. How can I win this man over to marry me? I've never had it so good.

DESPERATE
DEAR DESPERATE: What's so "good" about living with a man who "slaps you around" and asks you to wait on his lady friends? There are other jobs available if you will LOOK for them. Look in your local newspaper for HELP WANTED. Try the employment agencies. It's my view that you could hardly have it worse.

DEAR ABBY: MOTHER OF TWINS could just as well have signed her name. Everyone around here knew who she was anyway. She made such a big commotion about mothers sending their kids to a birthday party given by a pair of twins, with only one gift, "for the twins."

Ask her if, when she sends HER twins to a birthday party, each twin brings a separate gift? Or do they both bring one, and put in a card saying, "FROM THE TWINS"?

Rising Prices Trouble Public-Survey

By LOUIS HARRIS

Inflation and the cost of living are becoming more and more troublesome to the vast majority of Americans. Almost everyone now feels that prices have gone up in the past year.

One household in every four reports that some major capital expenditure has been deferred in the last few months for economic reasons.

Harris

The number of Americans who think the President is doing a good job on keeping the cost of living down has dwindled sharply in the last two months so that it now stands at 15%.

While 88% of the public thinks that the best way to keep inflation in check is to cut federal government spending, only 27% now thinks Johnson is doing a good job in curbing that spending. Nine months ago 46% thought the President was doing a good job.

These facts make it clear that the rising cost of living could turn out to be a greater political threat to Johnson and the Democratic Party than the war in Viet Nam.

The percentage of the public that thinks Johnson is doing a good job handling the war in Viet Nam jumped sharply after the bombings of oil depots near Hanoi and Halphong. But discontent on the economic front at home has held down the impact of this change on the President's over-all job rating. A total of 54% of the public now thinks he is doing an excellent or good job.

A cross-section of the public was asked this month as well as last May:

"How would you rate the job President Johnson has done on keeping the cost of living down—excellent, pretty good, only fair or poor?"

GOOD TO EXCELLENT

	May 1966	May 1965
Nation-wide	15%	31%
By Politics
Democrat	12%	40%
Republican	12%	19%
Independent	12%	27%
Voted Goldwater '64	12%	14%
Voted Johnson '64	12%	40%

Men	12%	22%
Women	12%	30%
By income
Under $1,000	12%	29%
$1,000-$1,999	12%	21%
$2,000 and over	12%	34%

The biggest pinch of the cost of living is reported to be in the purchase of food, although complaints about the cost of clothing, taxes and rents are also substantial.

People were asked:

"Where do you feel the pinch of the cost of living these days? For what things is it hardest for you to find the money?"

	May 1966	May 1965
Food, groceries	70%	70%
Clothing	12%	12%
Everything	12%	12%
Taxes	12%	12%
Housing, rents	12%	12%
Medical bills	12%	12%
Luxuries	12%	12%
Cars, gas	12%	12%
Home improvements	12%	12%
Insurance	12%	12%
Vacations	12%	12%
Home appliances	12%	12%
Utilities	12%	12%
Entertainment	12%	12%
Personal services	12%	12%

(Note: Percentages add to more than 100% because some people feel the pinch in more than one area.)

President Johnson has suggested that the public can help cool off the overheated economy by putting off purchases of some major items. The survey results show that nearly one home in every four has responded to this request. People were asked:

"Is there any major item you intend to purchase earlier this year which you have now put off?"

Have put off buying 27%
Have not put off 73%

The major purchases postponed are: appliances and color television, 36%; automobiles, 34%; home furnishings, 19%; new housing, 14%; home improvements, 13%.

The American people are just about unanimous in feeling that the cost of living has gone up from a year ago:

"As far as those things you buy regularly go, do you feel the cost of living has gone up the past year?"

July 1966 Sept. 1965

Prices have gone up 92%
Not gone up 8%

Despite these complaints, the people are still divided about cures for the problem.

The cross-section was asked: "To keep inflation in check, would you favor or oppose (reducing government spending, putting in a system of price controls, putting in a system of wage controls, raising income taxes)?"

FAVOR

	July 1966	Sept. 1965
Cut spending	68%	88%
Put in price controls	52%	50%
Put in wage controls	47%	49%
Raise income taxes	18%	20%

Part of the problem, of course, is that neither the President nor Congress has called upon the public to accept a program of controls or the one hand or a tax rise on the other. There is reason to believe from past public behavior that the people will respond to such action in a crisis.

To a large degree this puts the blame for cost-of-living increases on the President and his administration. However, other surveys have shown that 78% of the public thinks the business community is not doing as good a job as it could of keeping prices in line.

POSTCARD

For me, driving is the most rewarding way of seeing Europe. Freedom of time and movement. A closer look at the countryside. Leisure when you want it—a picnic lunch beside a Spanish mountain stream, an old Roman road and a meadow full of tiny daisies stays with me in vivid detail. (Many an air flight I've forgotten.)

Plan a circular tour—that car has to end up in the town where you rented it, or you pay to have it driven back. Few exceptions.

In the excitement of getting away, don't forget to have them show you the tools. On a rainy day in France, I looked in the back of the Dauphine and found everything but the jack. So I levered the car up with slippery fence posts and changed the tire.

Later I found that they stow the jack in a bracket alongside the engine. (Who would think of looking there?)

Yellow line (secondary) roads are more scenic than red line (highway) routes.

Safer, too. Continental drivers become racing types once behind the wheel and gallantly murder each other at about twice the rate we do in the U.S.

"In August we will be driving from Madrid to Portugal and back to Madrid. We would appreciate any advice . . .

At the hot time of the year, stay north. I would head straight up to Santander on the Cantabric coast. From Burgos north it's majestic country of cracked brown villages and long yellow plains.

In the north, dip off the coast into the cool mountains—the Picos de Europa. You can fish the Esla here—they use a 15-foot rod and catch a trout that has a pink salmon flesh.

"We would like to drive in England but worry about the driving on the left hand side of the road . . .

I really have to keep my mind on it for the first 24 hours—there's a tendency to slide over to the right if you daydream. Particularly if the road is empty. But after a day, left-hand driving seems quite normal.

Stay on back roads and England is the loveliest of all countries to drive in. It seems so uncrowded. All hedgerows and a thatched roof village with a leaded window pub just around the turn. A run of 150 miles a day is enough on these roads.

... driving in Italy?"

The big, new autostrada are straight, antiseptic, divided speedways completely lacking in color. They bypass all the beautiful towns. Take the old highways that follow the Roman consular roads.

... driving in France and speed limits?"

The few speed limit signs I've seen list the limits only for certain months of summer. The French pay little attention to these and gun past you usually shaking their fists. Wild driving country but very pretty back roads.

... and in Germany?"

Well-marked autobahns, good cars, very correct drivers insisting on such things as right-of-way—and, for some reason, one of the highest accident rates per mile in Europe.

"We have been in Mexico but have never driven there and wonder what you think."

Many highways down to Mexico City now. You get stretches of potholes without warning. Burros wander onto the road. Most bridges are narrow-marked "puente angosto." Don't crowd the man coming or your luck.

Most truck drivers are swingers at the wheel, several flashes of his headlights means, "I'm coming through the bridge first!" Or it may mean, "I have no brakes." But I love to drive in Mexico. Distributed by The Chronicle Features

GEIBERGER WINS PGA TITLE

...Thermometer-Thin Golfer Rallies From Hacker Role

Compiled From News Wires

Akron, Ohio — Thermometer-thin Al Geiberger blazed to the PGA Golf Championship by four strokes Sunday although it wasn't as easy as the score looked because he started out like a weekend hacker before suddenly recovering the master's touch.

Geiberger, who started out like he was going to blow it by bogeying three of the first four holes, came back to shoot a 36-36-72, for a total of 260 and an easy triumph over Dudley Wysong, who won the runner-up spot with a 72 for 284.

Despite that bad start, the skinny, 28-year-old Geiberger never was in trouble for the other leaders had the same trouble he had in trying to master the exacting 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club course. But in winning his first major golf title, Geiberger came on to close it like a champion.

So did some others—but in their case it was too late. Arnold Palmer, who has been trying to win this one 10 times, failed although he cracked par by two strokes with a 68.

But that was only good enough for a total of 287—seven strokes off Geiberger's winning total. At that same spot was the 54-year-old Sammy Snead, the leader for the first two rounds, who slipped to a 73.

Even farther back came defending champion Dave Marr at 291 and one stroke back of him came the pre-tournament favorite, Jack Nicklaus at 292.

Palmer paid the new champion a rare tribute. "He has an ideal temperament for this kind of course—he plays the same pace all the time. He doesn't get fired up and he doesn't panic," Palmer said.

"I remember I played with him in the final round of the American Classic here last year and I made a run at him. He didn't know I was there. Furthermore, he didn't care."

"That burned me up."

Geiberger was the only player in the original field of 165 able to match the 35-35-70 par of the rugged, sun-baked Firestone course, long and demanding and called by Gary Player "the toughest in the world."

Player, the little South African bidding for his second PGA title, fought a frustrating battle with sand traps—"I thought I was in the Sahara Desert," he said — and finished with a 73 for 286. He tied Bill Casper, the new U.S. Open title-holder, and Gene Littler, a former Open champion, for third.

But the loudest applause of the thousands gathered around the final green went to amazing, 54-year-old Sam Snead, whose flawless swing enabled him to lead through the first two rounds.

Dog tired, limping badly from a muscle pull in his left hip, the Slammer from White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., knocked in a birdie putt of 15 feet on the final hole for a 287.

Geiberger's winning prize is $25,000, the richest of his seven-year career on the tour.

"I tried not to pay attention to the other players," Geiberger said afterwards. "If you do, this course will eat you alive."

Earlier, the 6-foot-2½ inch touring regular from Carlton Oaks, Calif., said it was impossible to steer the ball around the course.

"You can't steer it—you can't baby it," he added. "You have to wind up and hit it."

That's what he did when he carried a four-stroke lead into the final round. It appeared for a while that he might blow it all. Six of his first 10 shots would have embarrassed any weekend municipal course golfer.

On the 400-yard No. 1, he sliced his drive into the rough, hooked his second into a small ravine at the left of the green, pitched over the green and was lucky to get down in five.

He drove into a fairway trap on the second, hit his second shot into the rough and his third over the green. His fourth shot still was on the fringe, but he putted twice for a bogey six. He scrambled for his par at the third from the rough, then took a five at the fourth from a trap.

The trend suddenly changed at the fifth hole, however—a tough 230-yard, par 3.

He rifled a 1-iron shot to the tight green and then sank a 30-foot putt for a deuce.

"That gave me a lot of confidence," Geiberger said.

"Those three bogeys had me a little worried."

At the seventh hole, Geiberger saw his lead cut to two strokes by the rallying Wysong, who had run in two birdies, but the new PGA champion held on. He parred the seventh and eighth, missing birdie putts, and at the ninth he hit the back of the cup for his second birdie from 10 feet.

At the turn he unwrapped a peanut butter sandwich and ate part of it, gulping it down with water. Then he reeled off five conventional pars, getting down in two from 55 feet on the 12th. He bogeyed the 15th when his tee shot was buried in the sand and finished with three pars.

Lema Killed In Plane Crash

Munster, Ind. (UPI) — Champagne Tony Lema, one of professional golf's most popular performers, was killed Sunday with his wife and two other persons when their small plane crashed and burned on a golf course.

Witnesses said the plane, a twin-engine Beechcraft Bonanza, was apparently in trouble and trying to ditch into the lake when a wingtip caught the turf and the craft burst into flames. It landed, half submerged, in the water at Lansing Sportsmen's Club.

Lema had just finished a disappointing 34th in the PGA tournament at Akron, Ohio, and was to play Monday in the $12,000 Lincolnshire Open at Lincolnshire Country Club, Chicago Heights, Ill.

Its intended destination was Chicago-Lansing Airport, Lansing, Ill., just across the state line.

A flight operator at Joliet, Ill., said the plane's pilot, Mrs. Doris Mullen, had radioed and told of the necessity to make a forced landing.

"No reason was given," he said. "They reported they were going to try to make a forced landing in a clearing near the lake. As they neared the lake, we understand they tried to avoid hitting a fisherman and crashed."

A Federal Aviation Agency spokesman said the plane carried the Lemas, Dr. George Bard, Kankakee, Ill., and the pilot, Mrs. Mullen, Joliet, mother of five.

Lema, 32, whose trademark was champagne parties after each tournament victory, married his wife, a former airline stewardess, three years ago. She had never before been involved in any air mishaps.

Mrs. Lema's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Baxter, Oklahoma City, Okla., heard the news of the crash on a television broadcast.

The plane belonged to mainline Aviation Inc., a charter firm in which Bard and Mrs. Mullen's husband owned stock.

promotional activities. The FAA spokesman said there had been no radio contact with the plane. He could not explain why it attempted to land on the golf course.

Giants Remain 1 Back

By The Associated Press
Just eight more. That's all Willie Mays needs to become the second best home run slugger in the history of baseball.

The star center fielder of the San Francisco Giants clouted his 527th to help the Giants beat Philadelphia 4-1 Sunday and remain one game behind first place Pittsburgh in the National League race. Babe Ruth tops the all-time homer list with 714. Jimmy Foxx is second with 534.

Mays' homer, his 22nd of the season, came off Bob Buhl with one on in the third inning and put the Giants ahead 4-0. Willie also singled in the first inning when the Giants got their first two runs and caught Billy White's drive to cut short the Phillies' threat in the seventh when they loaded the bases with two out.

A three-run homer by pinch hitter Willie Stargell in the seventh paced Pittsburgh to an 11-6 victory over Houston and kept the Pirates from losing ground to the Giants. The homer was Stargell's 24th of the season and broke a 5-5 tie with the Astros.

The seven-game winning streak of the first place Baltimore Orioles was snapped by the Chicago White Sox in the American League. The White Sox won 4-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Bruce Howard. J. C. Martin drove in two runs with a triple and a single.

The defeat cut the Orioles' lead to 12 games over the second place Detroit Tigers, who split a doubleheader with Cleveland. The Indians won the opener 3-0 behind Steve Hargan's shut out pitching and Joe Acuzze's two RBI on a homer and a single. The Tigers took the second 2-1 in 10 innings on Mickey Stanley's single that scored Norm Cash from second.

Mickey Mantle tied Lou Gehrig for sixth place on the all-time career round tripper in the first game as the New York Yankees swept a twin bill from California 9-1 and 4-1. Tom Tresh hit a grand-slam homer for the Yankees in the opener and hit another in the nightcap with the bases empty.

Washington climbed out of the AL cellar by taking two from Kansas City 6-2 and 7-4. Minnesota defeated Boston 4-2 helped by Cesar Tovar's two-run homer and a spectacular fielding play by shortstop Zoilo Versalles that snuffed out a Red Sox threat in the seventh.

Third place Los Angeles climbed within 2½ games of the top in the NL with a double shutout over the New York Mets 5-0 and 6-0. Don Drysdale hit his 29th career homer and pitched a six-hitter for the Dodgers in the opener.

... But The Winner Is Happy

—ASTLEFORD SAYS HE'LL BE THERE, WHEREVER IT IS; NOW THINKING OF NATIONAL AMATEUR— Hastings' Lochland To Bid For 1967 Men's State Tourney

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Hastings — The Lochland Country Club plans to submit a bid to the Nebraska PGA to repeat as host of the 1967 Nebraska State Men's Amateur Golf Tournament and 1966 winner Bob Astleford plans to be around no matter where it is held.

The ink had hardly dried on the scores that were posted here at the conclusion of the 59th annual tournament Saturday night when host pro Jack Weingart and Lochland press secretary Ted Kennedy exclaimed, "We want it back next year."

This makes Lochland, the club that J. M. McDonald built, the first to get in line for the 1967 tourney, a change from past years when the Nebraska PGA section, the group that runs the amateur tournament, has had to go shopping for a site to stage the competition.

"We are going to make a bid for it again," Weingart said as he relaxed after the hectic week. "I know it would set a precedent to have one club host the tournament two years in a row, but we want it and we hope we can get it again."

Kennedy agreed. "I think I speak for the members of the Lochland Country Club when I say we enjoyed having the golfers on our course the past week and we'd be delighted to have them back next summer."

The long (nearly 7,000 yards) Lochland course proved a stern test for Nebraska's amateur golfers and only a half dozen managed to break par during the four rounds of the tournament.

Astleford, who picked up his fifth straight championship and his seventh of all-time with his three-stroke margin over Lincoln's Dick Spangler Jr., was the only golfer to shoot two sub-par rounds.

Astleford opened with a two-under-par 70 and followed the second day with 71. But his final two rounds were 73 and 75, one and three over par, respectively.

The burly, cigar-smoking Omahan first had to win a technical battle with the United States Golf Association over his amateur standing before competing in this year's tourney.

Astleford was prohibited from playing in the National Amateur last year while his case was being investigated by USGA officials.

When he was cleared in a letter from USGA executive director Joe Dey a couple of days after finishing ninth in the Grand Island Tournament of Champions, Astleford began serious preparations for going after his fifth straight Nebraska championship. En route, he wrapped up another Omaha Pub-Links crown.

His next golf appearance will be in an exhibition Saturday with Gary Player at Dodge Park in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Then what? "I'd like to make a strong go at the National Amateur," he answers. "I've always played pretty well in it, but I've always run into someone else who also was playing well."

The National Amateur was conducted under a match play format until last year when Bob Murphy of Florida won at Tulsa. The only Nebraskan to win was Johnny Goodman of Omaha in 1937.

Qualifying for the event will be held Aug. 15 at the Lincoln Country Club with the tournament set for Aug. 31 to Sept. 3 at the Merion Golf Club in Ardmore, Pa.

What about next year's Nebraska State Men's Amateur? "I'll be giving it a go," Astleford replies. "I think I've got several years left."

Pro-Am Golf Scheduled Today At Chapel Hills

Elkhorn — A pro-am golf event is scheduled today at the Chapel Hills Golf Club near here.

Host pro Frank Sledlik is in charge of the event with the first tee-off time slated for 1 p.m.

cigarette ashes from a gold holder.

"Just a gift from the former King of England," he told the boys in the locker room. The cigarette holder actually had been presented to him by the Duke of Windsor, a golf enthusiast, in France.

Lema became most famous for his habit of serving champagne to the newspaper writers and television commentators after each victory.

It started in 1962 at the Orange County Open in California. Tony saw the newspaper men drinking beer in the pressroom and he said: "Fellows, if I win this tournament, we'll all have champagne."

Tony won. Champagne flowed.

Everytime he won a tournament after that — and he had 12 victories in his successful and tragically short career — he bought champagne for the press-room.

Lema was unlike the majority of the current new breed of pro golfers, most of whom went to college, had high-pressured publicity men and wore tasseled shoes and fleecy sweaters.

Born in Oakland, Calif., he grew up and played on the municipal courses until he joined the Marines in 1952.

After leaving the service, he spent 13 months as an assistant pro in the San Francisco area and then took a head pro job in Elko, Nev., before taking to the tour in 1957.

His first five years were lean ones — he never won more than $12,000 a year — but the trend turned in 1962. He won four tournaments that year and was 15th on the money list with $28,980.

From then on, his career skyrocketed. His peak year for tournament victories came in 1964 when he won the Bing Crosby, the Thunderbird and Buick opens, the British Open and then climaxed the season with a triumph in the World Series of Golf, winning the $50,000 first prize.

The 6-foot-2 Californian captivated the hearts of the British in 1964 when he flew overseas for the 104th British Open at historic St. Andrews and won the event without a day's practice.

Lema had never played a seaside course before. He had never used the smaller British ball. He was unfamiliar with St. Andrews, the craggy old course that had wrecked the hopes of many champions.

Loose and relaxed, Tony started with a 73, but on the next day he fired a 68 with an eagle 2 on the 12th hole on a 30-foot putt. He had a nine-stroke bulge over favorite Jack Nicklaus going into the final two rounds.

Jet Train Tests End Early

Bryan, Ohio (AP) — New York Central Railroad officials left Bryan with smiles Sunday after apparently concluding test runs of their jet-powered train of the future.

The converted lounge car with twin jet engines on its roof made two runs, one of about 30 miles from Butler, Ind., to near Toledo. The other was about 17 miles.

Company officials would not comment on, and no observers' estimates were available on Sunday's top speed.

Veteran railroad men who saw the train's first runs Saturday estimated its speed at more than 100 miles an hour, and there were unofficial reports that the train would try for speeds of over 200 m.p.h.

One NYC employee, asked by a newsman if he was proud of the train's performance, said, "I am, and I think the whole crew is."

Another man who rode the "Megtrans" (short for Megatransportation) said, "I'm smiling."

The Central officials made few other comments to newsmen, however. Public relations director Eric Woolfall said the test runs would be discussed this week at a news conference in New York City.

Woolfall did reveal that the "Megtrans" car was converted by the Budd Co. in Philadelphia. The jet engines were reportedly added at Cleveland NYC facilities.

There were no explanations why the testing ended Sunday instead of Monday as originally indicated. The train, called the "black beetle" by most Central employees and observers despite its official name, was put on a siding here after the runs.

Over 1,000 Sheep Leap Over Cliff

Bourg St. Maurice, France (AP) — Gendarmes are scratching their heads over the strangest event in the memory of this Alpine region — the massive death leap over a cliff of 1,050 sheep.

One theory is they were frightened by dogs or other animals, but there is no evidence to support it.

The value of the lost sheep was estimated at 210,000 francs ($42,000).

Shepherd Simon Balma, 42, said he bedded down a flock of 2,100 sheep and left with his dogs to join other shepherds in a nearby village. It was quiet, the pasture was good.

Next day the flock was gone. Half the sheep were found safe half a mile away. But the other half had gone in the opposite direction and, shoulder to shoulder, poured over the cliff.

Signals Say Surveyor 1 Bounced A Bit

Pasadena, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor 1 bounced two to three inches when it touched down on the moon at a speed of seven miles an hour June 1, a study of information radioed by the U.S. spacecraft showed Sunday.

Signals generated by strain gauges on the 620-pound vehicle's three shock-absorber legs indicate all landed virtually at the same time on a horizontal surface and that the circular footpads rebounded clear of the surface before settling down.

The pressure after the craft came to rest was a half pound per square inch — about the same that a space-suit astronaut would exert on the lunar surface.

Photographs televised by Surveyor show the two footpads visible to its camera dug into the soil about an inch, exerting a pressure of about eight pounds per square inch at impact.

The distance the eight-inch-diameter pads penetrated indicates the lunar soil has a bearing capacity of four to five pounds per square inch — enough to support the much larger pads of the 15-ton Apollo craft scheduled to land men on the moon by 1970.

Surveyor's soft landing — with less impact than a parachutist would feel — has been hailed as putting the United States far ahead in the space race. It was achieved with downward-firing retrorockets, throttled by radar as Surveyor 1 descended.

Wealthy Briton Suing Chinese Maid

London (AP) — British financier Charles Clore, reputed to be one of the richest men in the world, is suing a Chinese housemaid for quitting her six-month ($16.80) a week job.

He wants his money back for paying her fare from Hong Kong, charging breach of contract.

The maid, 24-year-old Miss Shiu Wai Lin Winnie, served notice through a lawyer Sunday that she will fight him in the courts.

"In view of her financial position she intends to apply for legal aid," said the lawyer, Jack Bernstein. "She is a very pretty girl and speaks good English."

Didn't Tell How Much Clore, in issuing a high court writ against the maid, did not disclose how much money he spent to bring her to England. Miss Shiu was hired through Oriental Domestic, a London agency, and came to Britain nine months ago with a Hong Kong girl friend to work for Clore.

The other girl is still a maid at the financier's mansion, Stype Grange, in Hungerford, a picturesque town in Berkshire County where many of the English gentry live. Clore has four big greenhouses there and follows one of his hobbies—orchid-growing.

Miss Shiu left a week ago to take another job. The lawyer said, "I have been asked

Bargainers Get Nowhere In Settling Airline Strike

Washington (AP) — Union and company representatives bargained around a table for about an hour Sunday but got nowhere toward settling the airline strike and gave up until Monday.

Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds recessed the meeting, the first joint bargaining session in three days, until Monday.

"I regret to say there has been no progress whatever," Reynolds said. "The parties are still deadlocked, still far apart on their respective views."

Reynolds met separately with the two groups in the early part of the afternoon, then convened the hour-long meeting.

Asked whether there had been any discussion of the development Saturday, in which certain Northwest Airlines military flights were delayed because aircraft crews refused to cross picket lines, Reynolds said this would be taken up privately and did not come up at Sunday's talks.

"It did not interfere with the discussions today," Reynolds said. He added that the Sunday talks were intelligent, thorough and temperate even though they were unproductive.

Burlington's Profits Rise 122 Per Cent

Chicago (AP) — With its freight traffic at an all-time high, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad reported Sunday that profits for the first six months this year were $10,800,000, or 122% higher than 1965's first-half $4,871,000.

Louis W. Menk, Burlington president, said the road handled 10.1 billion revenue ton-miles in the January-June period this year. The record flow heretofore was 9.7 billion ton-miles during the first half of 1944 during World II.

Gross income for the half ended June 30 this year, Menk said, was $138,972,000 compared with $128,822,000 a year earlier. He estimated net income for June alone this year was more than $2 million, or about 292% more than $605,000 for June 1965.

Major traffic gains included 16% in miscellaneous freight, 18% in gains and grain products, 13% in agricultural implements and 14% in lumber.

The Burlington's passenger traffic held steady for the six-month period with revenues about $9.3 million.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a 12-letter word. The number of letters is 12 or more, subtract 4. If the answer is less than 4, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left corner of the grid and count over the key number of letters to the letter in that square. Then count the letters under the number given you. The letter in that square is the first letter of the message. Continue in this way until you have the whole message.
